The tea importations from China and Japan, it will be remarked, show a steady increase on the total from both countries, but a falling-off from China alone. The total value for the ten months of 1874 for China $1,013,710, against $1,194,506 in the same not at first know that the complainant was a period of 1873, showing a decrease of $180,796; while the import from Japan for the same period of 1874 amounted to $3,604,748, compared with $2,831,240 in 1873. The decline in the import from China is probably attributable to two causes, the greater cost of carriage on Chiuese teas, and the improvement in quality of those grown in Japan. There is a most noticeable decline in the import of raw silk, as the following figures will strikingly demonstrate :- For the ten months of 1874 the value of the import amount to $150,000. If this is true, the orwas $662,569; for the same period of 1873, $2,276,380, a decrease of $1,613,811. The importation of rice shows a slight but not very noticeable advance. Of ginseng there were 265,680 lbs. exported to China in ten the same period of last year. Altogether the returns are satisfactory, and prove that the trade carried on between America and China and Japan is on a healthy footing. Variations will, of course, be noticeable almost every year on different articles, but so long as the general result shows a solid increase in trade,

FOR THE PHILADELPHIA EXHIBITION OF MELBOURNE, 30th Dec., 1874.

1.-I did myself the honour to address to you on the third of this month a preliminary letter on the subject of the Exhibition which it is proposed shall be held in Melbourne in August,

2.—Recalling your attention to the particulars detained therein. I am now gratified at being able to announce that the Governments of the two Colonies of New South Wales and South Australia have informed us that they will join in our projected arrangements for an Intercolonial Exhibition kere, preparatory to that to be held at Philadelphia. This encouraging intelligence justifies the confident expectation that Queensland, Tasmania, and Western Australia will also concur. 3.—New Zealand may probably find it advantageous to make common cause with Australasia at the American competition. However, should it be deemed more advisable to send terprise in her people to stimulate them. contribute independently to the Intercolonial Exhibition to be held in Melhourne. 4.—Thus I can fortify the assurance I conveyed to you that an exhibition would be held should not have been sent overland, in view of your sympathy and to induce you to lend your Levey, Esq., Secretary. 6.—They are armed with full powers to conduct the Intercolonial Exhibition here, and make arangements for combined representation of Australasian products at Philadelphia. 7.-The draft of a prospectus of proceedings is prepared. It is expected that the Commissioners will adopt it without any material immediate guidance, accompanied by a table showing the classification of objects which it is intended shall be ourried out at Philadelphia. 8.-You will by the latter see ut a glance that more than two millions of British subjects already occupy in detached communities the five colonies which fringe the sea-board of this Continent, and the islands of Tasmania and New Zealand, and that their industrial activity and commercial enterprize are not unworthy of the country from which they have sprung. A strong desire exists to extend relutions with their fellow subjects who dwell in the other dependencies of the Queen in the Eastern seas, as also with the impabitants of the possessions of other European Sovereigns within the same latitudes.

9.—The forthcoming Exhibition presents an occusion favourable for the establishment o you, on behalf of the new Commissioners, that they will esteem very highly such exertions as Leung Atong, a coolie, was charged by Chi. you may be pleased to make in carrying out the

> A ROOK IN MID-ATLANTIC. The New York Tribune, of December 15th contains an elaborate statement concerning rook discovered by Captain Picano, of the Italian barque Theresa. The captain reports that when in mid-ocean he discovered a high and shelving rock projecting above the surface of the water. Tribune reporter visited the vessel and conversed with the officers and crew. They all testified that they had seen the rock. course deviated from that usually followed by vessels crossing the Atlantic, the prevailing head winds compelling the vessel to sail further to the north and south than usual. The rook was only three miles from the vessel, and was in sight for thirty-three hours. It is described as looming up to the height of the mizenment of the vessel. The captain insists with so much enricetness upon the existence of the rock, and is supported so warmly by the officers and crew, that his statement carries with it great weight The sun, he says, shone brightly on the rool while it was in sight, and he gould not be mis taken. It was in 40 00 porth latitude, 62.18 west longitude.

EXPERIMENTS ON FLOWERS. The Journal de la Societe Centrale d'Hortiulture de France contains some interesting particulars on the artificial colouring of vatural flowers. Those that have a violet bue will gradually change colour and turn to green under the influence of the smoke of a organ This is easily seen, for instance, on the petals of Thlaspi or shephord's purse, Iberis umbellate, or Hesperis matronalis. This change is owing to the ammonia contained in tobacco: starting from this circumstance, the Italian professor, L. Gabba, has made a series of experiments on a variety of plants with that al kali in its natural state. His apparatus is a very simple one, merely consisting in a plate into which he pours liquid ammonia covering it afterwards with a reversed glass funinto the tube. In this way he has seen violet, blue, and purple turn to bright green ; intense carmine red *(of the pink) become black : white turn vellow, &c. The most extraordinary results were afforded by variegated flowers. When the latter, immediately after this exposure, are dipped into pure water, they will retain their new colours for several hours, after which they simply return to their former state. - Another curious discovery of Professor Gabba's is, that the flowers of aster, or starwort, that are violet and have no smell, acquire a delightful fragrance and turn red under the influence of ammonia. We know that the Jananese by means of injections which they keep secret, can colour or whiten flowers and obtain wonderful variegation. The Chinese have also secrets of their own, among which one for reducing large trees to a dwarf size. Garden of Acclimatisation has at this momen an orange tree, a hundred years old, and imported from China, no bigger than a rose tree; its fruit scarcely attains the size of a
